UNITED STATES WILL NOT YIELD

President Wilson's Note to Berlin Has Been Cabled.

CAREFULLY GUARD CONTENTS

Washington, June 10.—The note of President Wilson to Germany, which occasioned the withdrawal of W. J. Bryan from the cabinet, went forward to its destination. It will be published in the newspapers Friday morning, by which time, it is calculated, it will have reached Berlin.

Regardless of the result of President Wilson's renewed demands upon Germany to make her submarine operations conform to the principles of international law and humanity it is felt that the document is already certain of a large place in the history of the United States.

As a cause of the nearest approach to a cabinet crisis experienced in the American government and a new turning point in the career of Mr. Bryan it is regarded as of especial importance, whether it proves to be the prelude to unfriendly relations with Germany or not.

Consideration of the remarkable situation existing in this country, partly as a result of the importance of the issue with Germany in itself and partly because of the domestic political turmoil it seems likely to occasion, led the president and his advisers to agree on the earliest possible publication of the document.

Avoid Lack of Courtesy.

It was desired, however, that sufficient time should be allowed for the note to reach Ambassador Gerard at Berlin for presentation at the German foreign office, to avoid all charge of a lack of due courtesy to Germany. Friday morning was chosen as the proper time for its publication in this country and it is not doubted Germany will make it public simultaneously.

While the precise contents of the note are being guarded most carefully officials have permitted it to become known that the chief features of the communication is a second summons to Germany to state her intentions as to the observance of principles of international law and humanity, which this government has invoked for the protection of American life and property on the high seas.

Such contentions of Germany as to alleged facts in the Lusitania case as the president felt should be discussed are disposed of in the note, Germany being politely told that the United States is satisfied that she has been misinformed as to the Lusitania. The tone of the note is most friendly and every effort has been made to make the expression of the United States position as little offensive to Germany as possible.

Future Rests With Germany.

Administration officials now feel that the future rests with Germany. The action of the president, in letting Mr. Bryan leave the cabinet rather than abandon the course he and the rest of his advisers agreed on as the proper one to pursue with Germany, was pointed to as certain to have the effect of solidifying the attitude of this government.

It is felt that now all uncertainty as to whether the president will stick by his original position on the submarine issue has been removed.

Mr. Wilson, it became known, is not opposed to the idea of an investigation or diplomatic discussion of cases in dispute between Germany and the United States, but feels that before such a step can be taken some guaranty must be given that in the interim of discussion the lives of American citizens will not be jeopardized and that the United States will not be required to yield any of its rights while the discussion is under way.

The news of Secretary Bryan's resignation is openly counted on by officials here to do more than any note could possibly do; that is, awaken Germany to the realization that President Wilson means what he has said to Germany. It has all along been felt here that Germany did not appreciate the seriousness with which America viewed the issue; that Germany was making the mistake of assuming that the United States was so anxious to avoid trouble that it would forego insistence upon its rights.

Chicago, June 10.—Senator Thomas W. Hardwick of Georgia, who was in Chicago on his return home from the Hawaiian Islands, said the resignation of William J. Bryan as secretary of state did not mean any serious political breach with President Wilson. "Regardless of this or any other incident, here or elsewhere," Senator Hardwick said, "I have the utmost confidence in both the desire and ability of the president to maintain the rights of this country and at the same time avoid war."

WILL FILE PROTEST ON TRADE EMBARGO

President May Soon Send Note to Great Britain.

Washington, June 10.—Representative Webb of North Carolina urged President Wilson to send promptly a note to Great Britain, covering the general subject of neutral rights as affected by the blockade of the allies. Mr. Webb and other Southern members of congress, in whose behalf he spoke, feel the cotton interests have suffered unjustly as a result of the embargo.

No comment was made at the White House concerning what the president told Mr. Webb, but the latter advised friends later that Mr. Wilson had promised early action. The president, it is known, has had under consideration for some time a note to be sent to Great Britain, urging a compliance with the requests of the United States as expressed in its protest of March 30 to Great Britain and France against the operations of the blockade on commerce in noncontraband articles consigned through neutral countries.

CREATES GREAT SURPRISE

German Paper Comments on Secretary Bryan's Resignation.

Berlin, June 10.—The resignation of the American secretary of state has caused great surprise here and opinions as to the reasons which led Mr. Bryan to take this step differ greatly.

The Mittag Zeitung assumes that Mr. Bryan wanted a sharper note against Germany than President Wilson was willing to sanction, but it does not expect a friendly attitude toward Germany from the president. The paper concludes:

"It must be growing clear to some of the leading men in America that America is playing an unenviable role in following in England's wake. America will certainly have no success with us by adopting England's stialwart tone."

"Mr. Bryan and Mr. Wilson are engaged in giving reconsideration to the case. The more thoroughly they do it all the better it will be for America."

RESIGNATION CAUSES
DEEP STIR IN GERMANY.

London, June 10.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company from Amsterdam says:

"The news of the resignation of Secretary of State Bryan became known in Germany at noon and caused a deep stir. The foreign office ordered the newspapers to refrain from commenting on the resignation until further notice."

GERMANY INSISTS FRYE CASE MUST GO TO PRIZE COURT

(By United Press)

Washington, June 10.—Germany insists that the Wm. P. Fry case must go to the prize court, the state department this afternoon receiving through Ambassador Gerard at Berlin the reply of Germany to the representations of this country relative to the sinking of the American sailing vessel with a cargo of wheat consigned to an order in England, by the kaiser's raider Prinz Eitel Frederick. It had been hoped to settle the affair between the state department and the German Embassy at Washington, and it was supposed that this was satisfactory to Germany but the note this morning disproves that idea.

Following a law passed by Germany at the beginning of the war such cases must go to the prize court. However, Germany makes plain and admits her liability and her willingness to make reparations and adds "Should the prize court's decision be unsatisfactory the government, if necessary, will overrule the court to satisfy the United States."

Berlin, June 1.—By Courier to Denmark, thence The Hague and London.—Americans are generally apprehensive in anticipation of a diplomatic break between Germany and the United States, and rumors spreading for several days says that many are ready to leave on 24 hours notice. An American dentist says that Consul General Lay informed him that it would be inadvisable to make further dates with his patients. The embassy staff is overworked and it is expected that a number unable to prove citizenship will be refused pass ports unless especially ordered from Washington. The assurance of safe conduct was willingly given by Count Von Jagow. Although government officials are optimistic Americans are finding life more unbearable since the publication of the widely quoted article by the Fatherland saying that the United States had made secret treaty with the allies.

HENRY WATTERSON.

Calls Bryan a Failure as Secretary of State.

ONLY FIT FOR EVANGELIST

Henry Watterson Refers Sarcastically to W. J. Bryan.

Louisville, June 10.—Henry Watterson, under the caption "The Parting of the Ways," says in the Courier-Journal that William Jennings Bryan should have been a preacher. His editorial refers to Mr. Bryan as a monumental failure as secretary of state.

"In the resignation of Mr. Bryan the inevitable has come to pass. Why he delayed so long is a puzzle."

"Observing that since the clash of arms in Europe the secretary of state has been a millstone not only around the president's neck, but around the country's neck as well, it is but fair to say that, prior to these untoward times, he had made himself indispensable to the legislation which Mr. Wilson sought."

"If he had gone into evangelism he would have made a good third to Spurgeon and Moody. An unlikely secretary of state never reached the head of the department."

BURLESON LIABLE TO LEAVE CABINET

Said Postmaster General Has Senatorial Ambitions.

Washington, June 10.—That Postmaster General Albert Sidney Burleson will be the next member of the cabinet to resign was the general belief in political circles here. Mr. Burleson was the one man in the cabinet who stood by the "peerless leader" in his difference with the president right up to the moment when it was either stand by the president or break. Mr. Burleson at that point which was in the latter part of last week, decided that he would stand by the president.

Always a close friend of Mr. Bryan, however, Mr. Burleson, it is believed, will take the first graceful opportunity for retiring from the cabinet, though, as has been remarked several times recently among the faithful and deserving Democrats here $12,000 jobs are not laying around loose these days.

It is understood that Mr. Burleson has his eye on the seat in the United States senate now filled by Senator Culberson of Texas, chairman of the senate judiciary committee, and one of the most experienced and best liked of the Democrats in the upper house.

AGED ELOPER IS GUILTY

Convicted of Statutory Offense Against Granddaughter.

Milwaukee, June 10.—After twenty minutes' deliberation a jury in the municipal court found Fred Risch, sixty-five years old, guilty of a statutory offense against his granddaughter, Vera Hintz, sixteen years old.

Risch was arrested in May on the request of the authorities at Albert Lea, Minn. He had taken his granddaughter from her home there without the knowledge of her parents. Sentence was deferred.

Declare Rate Increases Just.

Chicago, June 10.—Briefs in behalf of the sixty-four Western railroads, who have petitioned for increases in freight rates, were completed and forwarded to the interstate commerce commission in Washington, to be filed with that body. Oral arguments on the briefs will be heard by the commission June 22.

Journals Comment on Retirement of Secretary Bryan.

REFLECTS CREDIT ON BOTH

Daily Telegraph Says President Wilson Has Clearly Taken His Stand on High Ground and Mr. Bryan Equally Thought It His Duty to Stand by the Principles Which He Holds to Be Sacred.

London, June 10.—The resignation of William Jennings Bryan and the nature of the American note to Germany which brought it about transcend in interest all else bearing on the war. The London papers give Mr. Bryan's letter of resignation and the president's reply the most prominent place.

These are followed by long dispatches from their American correspondents, and articles on Mr. Bryan's career which emphasize his advocacy of settlement of international disputes by arbitration, and draw the conclusion that the note must be very strong to have brought about his retirement.

"America stands firm" or similar phrases are the most favored headings and also the text of editorials commenting on the latest developments in the American-German relations.

The Daily Telegraph, in an editorial on the resignation of Secretary of State Bryan, says:

"It is no business of ours to comment on the incident which, however we regard it, reflects no little credit on both parties to the controversy. The president has clearly taken his stand on high grounds and, having made up his mind, chooses to adhere to his resolution as the likeliest means for gaining his end. Mr. Bryan equally thought it his duty to be consistent with his past policy and refused to desert the principles which he holds to be sacred."

"As to the probable results of Mr. Bryan's resignation it does not look at present as if they would seriously affect the American policy. Those who sympathize with Germany in the United States may try to make capital out of it on the ground that the late secretary has a large following in the country and therefore represents a solid body of opinion favorable to Berlin. But there is nothing in Mr. Bryan's letter of resignation to support such a contention."

"When the contents of the note to Germany are made known we shall be better able to appreciate the president's firmness and Mr. Bryan's reluctance. We look forward without apprehension to the disclosure of its contents, for, though we are far from any desire to criticize or advise, we are sure the United States, guided by the highest considerations and in strict accordance with its precedents in the past, will support those rules of fairness, justice and humanity to which the president in his earlier note had already made so eloquent an appeal."

RECEIVES ROYAL ASSENT

House of Lords Passes the Munitions Measure.

London, June 10.—The ministry of munitions bill establishing a department to attend to the furnishing of supplies and munitions on an adequate scale was passed by the house of lords and received royal assent.

In the house of lords, on the ministry munitions bill, Baron St. Davids, lord lieutenant of Pembroke, thought it "a pity that the bill did not give power to requisition men as well as workers." He wished to dissociate himself, he said, from attacks on the working classes.

The upper classes as a whole, Lord St. Davids said, had come out of this trial wonderfully well, but there were idlers still among them.

When hit by the torpedo the Gulfight was on its way from Port Arthur, Tex., to Rouen with a cargo of oil. The steamer, after it was torpedoed, anchored in Crow sound and later was taken to St. Mary's roads. The German government, in reporting on the attack, said it was due to a mistake of the submarine commander.

The following is an early report of the supposed finding of Vanderbilt's body and which called forth the above denial:

Ennis, Ireland, June 10.—The body of Alfred G. Vanderbilt is believed to have been found in-shore at Bolingpoint by an old woman who was engaged in picking sea weeds. In the pocket of the clothes was found a watch bearing the monogram corresponding to the initials of Vanderbilt, and the message bearing the news said papers on the body gave further evidence of identification. Vanderbilt's secretary said nothing was known definitely, and that the body found was in a badly decomposed condition. Alfred G. Vanderbilt went down on the ill-fated Lusitania.

DISTRIBUTION OF TAXES
How the 44 Mill Tax is Apportioned
In City of Brainerd Detailed
in Communication
There seems to be a general misunderstanding as to the amount of taxes or rather the percentage paid for taxes by Brainerd tax payers into the various funds and the manner of its distribution. This has been brought up by the proposed increased tax levy of 2 1/2 mills additional for general city expenses.
It has been suggested that the Dispatch publish the following and help place this before the voters in a clear
and concise manner.
When the voters authorized the city hall and East Brainerd fill bonds
they increased the general expenses of the city. The money now needed to pay the interest upon these bonds
must be taken from the funds paid out for city official's salaries, fire department, streets, hydrant rental, street lights, etc. The council has these fixed charges to meet without sufficient money to meet them with.
There remains but one of two things
to do.
They must dispense with street lights, further reduce the police force and cut out absolute necessities or else the voters will find it necessary
to vote the increase of 2 1/2 mills.
In Fergus Falls the people refused to vote the increase and as a result the town has not only had to practice
the strictest economy but has to dispense with absolute necessities.
Brainerd's tax levy is now 44 mills.
The increase asked for would make it 46 1/2 mills, an increase of 2 1/2 mills.
This would amount approximately to
a 5 3/4 per cent increase in taxes.
Wherever a man paid $1.00 tax before he would pay approximately $1.05 3/4. This is a small amount to the average taxpayer but it will mean much to the city.
The city council has gone over the budget most carefully and have reduced salaries, reduced the police force, cut out every expense they possibly could and even if they secure the increased levy they will find it exceedingly hard to maintain the running expense of the city. The council dare not transfer any of these funds to the general fund else the council might do that. Each fund is levied for a distinct purpose.
The 44 mill tax is distributed as follows:
State Revenue ----- 3.52
State School ----- 1.23
General County ----- 3.30
Tubercular Sanitarium ----- .51
Road and Bridge fund ----- 2.20
Sinking fund ----- .44
Bonding Interest ----- .30
State Loan ----- .50
Local State Tax ----- 1.00
Brainerd Schools ----- 14.75
School Buildings ----- 3.25
Sinking fund ----- 1.00
City School State ----- .75
Brainerd Bonding Interest ----- 2.25
Brainerd Sinking ----- 1.00
City Revenue fund ----- 5.25
Library fund ----- .50
Park fund ----- .50
Revolving fund ----- .50
Music (band) ----- .50
State Loan ----- .75
Total mills ----- 44.00
It will be seen that .01975 or about 44 per cent of our taxes are used for public schools.
As every citizen is proud of his city he should carefully consider the necessary expense of the city before he votes. If he wants his city to keep up with the times it will be necessary for him to get out and vote for the bonds. It cannot keep up with the march of progress otherwise.

DISTRIBUTION OF TAXES

How the 44 Mill Tax is Apportioned
In City of Brainerd Detailed
in Communication

There seems to be a general misunderstanding as to the amount of
taxes or rather the percentage paid
for taxes by Brainerd tax payers into
the various funds and the manner of its distribution. This has been brought up by the proposed increased tax levy of 2 1/2 mills additional for general city expenses.

It has been suggested that the Dispatch publish the following and help
place this before the voters in a clear
and concise manner.

When the voters authorized the city hall and East Brainerd fill bonds
they increased the general expenses of the city. The money now needed
to pay the interest upon these bonds
must be taken from the funds paid
out for city official's salaries, fire department, streets, hydrant rental, street lights, etc. The council has these fixed charges to meet without sufficient money to meet them with.
There remains but one of two things
to do.

They must dispense with street
lights, further reduce the police force
and cut out absolute necessities or else the voters will find it necessary
to vote the increase of 2 1/2 mills.

In Fergus Falls the people refused to vote the increase and as a result the town has not only had to practice
the strictest economy but has to dispense with absolute necessities.

Brainerd's tax levy is now 44 mills.
The increase asked for would make it 46 1/2 mills, an increase of 2 1/2 mills.
This would amount approximately to
a 5 3-4 per cent increase in taxes.
Wherever a man paid $1.00 tax before he would pay approximately $1.05 3-4. This is a small amount to the average taxpayer but it will mean much to the city.

The city council has gone over the budget most carefully and have reduced salaries, reduced the police force, cut out every expense they possibly could and even if they secure
the increased levy they will find it exceedingly hard to maintain the running expense of the city. The council dare not transfer any of these funds to the general fund like the council might do that. Each fund is levied for a distinct purpose.

The 44 mill tax is distributed as
follows:

State Revenue	3.52
State School	1.23
General County	3.39
Tubercular Sanitarium	.51
Road and Bridge fund	2.20
Sinking fund	.44
Bonding Interest	.30
State Loan	.50
Local State Tax	1.00
Brainerd Schools	14.75
School Buildings	3.25
Sinking fund	1.00
City School State	.75
Brainerd Bonding Interest	2.25
Brainerd Sinking	1.00
City Revenue fund	5.25
Library fund	.50
Park fund	.50
Revolving fund	.50
Music (band)	.50
State Loan	.75

Total mills ----- 44.00
It will be seen that .01975 or about 44 per cent of our taxes are used for public schools.

As every citizen is proud of his city he should carefully consider the necessary expense of the city before he votes. If he wants his city to keep up with the times it will be necessary for him to get out and vote for the bonds. It cannot keep up with the march of progress otherwise.

Full of Beauty and Splendor

So familiar has the public become with the fact of the enormous growth attained each year by the Sparks World's famous shows that the return of this greatest of American shows is awaited with much interest knowing full well that there is always something new to be seen each visit.

In fact words fail to do justice to this wonderful aggregation of arenic celebrities, hippodrome spectacles and animal features. This season they have come together from all corners of the earth to make this the most complete exhibition of its kind ever attempted.

At 10:30 a. m., Monday, June 21, the grandest, rarest and most complete free street pageant ever seen—a fortune invested in wardrobe, trappings, and accessories—will pass through the principal business streets and cages and tableaux in endless variety gorgeous floats, fierce wild animals, ponderous elephants and stately camels will swing past to the martial music of four brass bands, musical wagons and the soul stirring callopes.

Notwithstanding the previous enlargements the claim is made that the additions that have been added to the show for this season are far greater than ever before attempted and make this beyond all doubt the most noteworthy amusement achievement of the century, keeping ever in mind the three chief watchwords—magnitude, excellence and exclusiveness.

WORRY IS A PERIL

It Often Causes Ills Greater by Far Than Itself.

LIABLE TO LEAD TO DEATH.

In Many Cases It Is an Important Agent in the Production of Diabetes, Gout, Goiter, Chronic Heart Disease and Other Physical Troubles.

With the possible exception of those in the period of happy childhood, every one is at times a victim of worry. In fact, the average individual thinks of and accepts worry much as he thinks of and accepts disagreeable weather conditions—as one of the bitter things of life which must be taken with the sweet. In other words, he regards it as a fact, but does not attempt to analyze it.

The wisest thinkers of all times have recognized the condition, and many well known writers have expressed their views of its psychology. What has not been sufficiently recognized, however, until very recently, is the importance of worry, not merely in itself, as implying the absence of happiness, but as the cause of ill far greater than itself, the cause predisposing to secondary manifestations which would otherwise have been escaped altogether.

Having fully comprehended this fact, the next logical step in scientific progression is to determine the exact mechanism by which these disturbances are brought about. Through the combined efforts of psychologists and physiologists we are just beginning to reach the true physical basis of this important subject.

The keynote of worry is beyond doubt a disturbance of the mind, says Dr. Eric D. Forrest in the Medical Record. It may be defined as the restless consciousness of all incumbrances which we accept under protest.

To elaborate this definition, it is the mind's unrest about anything which concerns us, whether it relates to our future, our dear ones, a cause we have espoused, our happiness, our salvation, our means of support, our position in life, our health, our fate or our success in general. It does not consist solely in our interest in all these things; it is rather a disquietude arising from a feeling of helplessness before the various chances and claims of life.

The popular opinion seems to be that the mental condition is one of depression, possibly because the physical manifestations are chiefly depressive in nature. The fact cannot be too strongly emphasized, however, that the primary mental condition is one of overactivity and, moreover, overactivity along lines of fixed ideas.

Without taking up individually the phases of worry brought about by the various specific causes the physical manifestations of worry in general may be said to be depression of respiration, sighing, disturbances in rate and force of heart beat, vasomotor changes, disturbances in secretion, pallor, cold extremities, relaxation and decreased motility of the alimentary tract, dilatation of the pupil, loss of weight, insomnia and general physical exhaustion.

These disturbances may vary in their prominence and may appear as groups of symptoms characterizing well known diseases. Thus worry is sometimes an important agent in the production of diabetes, gout, exophthalmic goiter and chronic heart disease.

Inasmuch as worry is primarily a disease of the mind, and since every portion of the body is intimately connected with every other part by a network of nervous tissue of great complexity, we naturally seek for the causes of these manifestations, first of all, in the nervous system.

In every individual at a given time there is a limited amount of potential energy stored up in the cells of the brain. This function seems to rest in the chromatin granules of the nerve cells, and it has been shown repeatedly that a liberation of nervous energy, whether in response to a psychic or sensory stimulus, results in a physiological degeneration of the chromatin granules, and consequently of the cells themselves. Obviously a prolonged discharge of nervous energy diminishes by so much the amount left in the brain cells. Furthermore, stimuli of sufficient number, intensity or duration may cause exhaustion and death.

WOMAN SUFFERAGE

It's War Time Aspect

London, June 10.—The women of England are doing their duty. They are taking care of the wounded, or if they cannot assist in work of that kind they are adding their savings to promote the good work. They are knitting and sewing for the soldiers at the front. The suffragists have given so little trouble to the government that it will undoubtedly soften the hearts of those in Parliament, since the "militants" have turned all their energies to aid the fighting men of England, and so sufferage may soon come after this terrible war is over.

Thousands of women in America have overcome their sufferings, and have been cured of womanly ills by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine, though started nearly half a century ago, sells more widely today than any other womanly tonic. It can now be had in tablet form as well as liquid, and every woman who suffers from backache, headache, nervousness, pain at times, should take this "Prescription" of Dr. Pierce.

Many a woman is nervous and irritable, feels dragged down and worn out for no reason that she can think of. In ninety-nine per cent of these cases it is the womanly organism which requires attention; the weak back, dizzy spells and black circles about the eyes, are only symptoms. Go to the source of trouble and correct the irregularities, the drains on the womanly system and the other symptoms disappear.

Doctor Pierce's Pellets are unequalled as a Liver Pill. Smallest, easiest to take. One tiny Sugar-coated Pellet a Dose. Cures Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. 25 cents vial, by druggists.—Advt.

FROM BRITISH FRONT

By William G. Shepherd,
United Press Staff Correspondent

Headquarters of the British Army, Northern France, April 18, by mail to New York—Lunch in the little Belgian village which this morning had had its first taste of German shell fire was not appreciated by me. Three of Gen. French's flying men sat at the table across the way.

"My quarters were blown to bits this morning," said one. "I don't suppose I've even got a comb left."

A worried young woman dressed in black came up to us.

"I cannot give you much," she said. "Madame has gone and the cook has gone and the woman who washes the dishes has gone too."

"When are you going?" asked one of the flying men.

"Oh, if more shells fall I suppose I must go, too," she said.

She brought us coffee, rolls and oranges.

"Ah, those Boscches!" she said.

Those three words did not express her feelings, but her tones did. She would not stop and talk. At least 50 officers were seated at the great long table and the smaller tables demanded something to eat. And this one winsome Belgian girl, who had stuck to the job, ran around among them with the coffee pot, with bread, cheese and fruits and to top it all came into the dining room at last with a huge bowl of soup which she had been cooking while doing all her other tasks.

"It's late, but it's good," she said. And so soup was the dessert, made by a girl who had stuck to her stove like a soldier sticks to his gun. A Canadian soldier had seated himself nearby.

"Everybody eating in spite of the shells," he said in tones that were strangely American. He said he had come from the trenches which had been attacked by the Germans with gas fumes. He said they came up in clouds. Men who were laid out turned back and gasped for breath. Their lungs hurt them. It was like inhaling fire.

"I did it to be sure of the out-rages in Belgium," he said, "but by God I now believe it all."

He spoke with tremendous earnestness.

We went back to the hospital at 10:20 a. m. A minute later the doctor came out, gave orders to the driver and climbed into the car. We climbed in while the doctor hauled out of a canvas bag some crackers and preserved meat.

He told us what had happened in the town. Twenty shells had fallen, then one of Gen. French's big batteries had been ordered to find that German battery and silence it."

With the long fingers of their shells the British artillery men had felt out the German guns and had stopped the German tornado.

Whether the German guns had been blown up or whether they had stopped firing in order to conceal their whereabouts from the British battery was not known. But the point was they had stopped. I began to understand as we sped out of this town, why the Belgians like Gen. French's men had battered the Germans because the Germans batter them.

"How is the man whose jaw was shot away?" I asked the doctor.

The surgeon was opening the tin can with a jack knife.

"Pretty bad," he said. "He is sitting up in bed, with blood all over everything."

"He's an old Belgian merchant," he added. "Lived here all his life, with everything quiet and peaceful until this morning. He can't live." He did not curse the Germans. Perhaps he knew what the girl and Canadian hadn't done, the weakness of words.

Our automobile after an hour's run stopped at the foot of a hill. The firing had sounded nearer and nearer as we ran along. "We'll run up this hill and see how it looks," said the doctor. "We can see the whole British line from here."

Ten minutes later we were on top. "There's Ostend," said the doctor. "and the English channel. You can see the white line of the surf. We are between there and Armentiers."

In front of us is 60 miles of battle line and along 4 miles of it the fiercest and greatest battle in the history of warfare was being fought between the British and the Germans. It was the first day of the new summer war. The deep roar of hundred storms throbbed in the air. We tried to take in the view and its vast significance in one general survey. It was impossible. Clouds of smoke here and there. The thunder of guns. The eyes and ears took them in, but it was all so vast that my mind remained unmoved. It could not respond to such a tremendous stimulus. Men were dying in that landscape I knew. Others were fighting like devils. Human life, down on that great plain was being quoted at zero. It was being given away free. Down there on those checkered farms, along those canals, in the river, on the mounds, men were fighting with might and main.

"This is the war between Great Britain and Germany that novelists used to write about and the people used to poor, poor," said the financier as he looked over the landscape, with his glasses. He had gotten a little bit of the vastness of the scene into his words.

It was not until we began to pick out various points and keep our eyes fixed on them that the sense of the vastness of it all reached me.

"I wonder if I can understand what it means if I look at Ypres alone," I calculated to myself.

Ypres, a few miles away from us, was, at first, the most fascinating point. In the sunshine the tall ruin of the Cloth Hall tower gleamed almost white. When I had been in it a week before it had been only a time-stained wreck. We could see white puffs burst into view around it. They were shrapnel shells, they were playing a tattoo on the city. Two church spires stood up in the sunshine; the shrapnel clouds played about them also. Below these three peaks of masonry floated a sea of white smoke. I began to understand. That great town square in beautiful old Ypres was under this cloud of smoke; the houses that line the winding old streets were flying about in bits; any minute we might see one of the spires wiped from view like a light going out, or the old tower smashed from its place in the world's small treasury of beautiful architecture. Few things could be left alive in Ypres; in the sunshine that whole city stood, a place of death and destruction; its stones patiently built into houses; its homes, its churches, all that the generations of toiling Belgians had built up through the slow centuries were being torn down before our eyes. And Ypres was only one of the landscape.

Another spot was Poperinghe, six miles from Ypres. Shells flew near it. A huge black cloud came up from the earth, in its suburbs. This meant that a German 17 inch shell had burst there. The residents of that town had flown, after experiencing all the terrors and the heart straining that came to the people of the little town we had visited in the morning.

"There goes a 'Jack Johnson' into Ypres," said the financier.

"We saw the black flash of a German 17 inch shell break near the Cloth Hall tower. Wherever we looked in the half circle of Flanders that spread before us, shells were breaking. We picked out fires. We counted six great clusters of smoke along a stretch of fourteen miles. These were not houses, but villages burning. Far away we could see an intense conflagration; black smoke suddenly burst through the yellow. A great distillery, to which the farmers for miles around, had brought their grain for many years, was burning.

"That black smoke means that the alcohol tanks exploded," said the doctor. That great distillery fire and the burning villages were also only dots on the huge panorama. Into our foreground flew a British aeroplane followed by the white puffs of German shrapnel smoke arranged as regularly in the sky as if they were

WHAT WAR MOVES MEAN

By J. W. T. Mason, Written for the United Press
New York, June 10—Delays in mobilization probably continue to be the reason why the Italian offensive toward Trieste remains checked along the Isonzo river. For nearly two weeks, the Italians have remained quiescent in their present positions.

During the first days of the war they penetrated between seven and ten days into Austrian territory north of the Gulf of Trieste, but since then no further advance has been attempted. Ammunition cannot yet have been given out and the only remaining reason for the curious condition of affairs is that the organization for sending men to the front is developing imperfection.

The present development of the Trieste campaign differs, in outward appearance, from the stoppage of the German offensive last August, also along the Meuse river, in Belgium. The Belgian check began when the Germans reached Liege on August 4, and continued until the allies evacuated Manour, on August 23. The halt was caused primarily by the active opposition of the allies, which circumstances marked the difference between the early developments of the German and Italian offensive below the surface, an essential similarity exists as to the causes of the Meuse check and the Isonzo halt. The German mobilization was not sufficiently advanced until the third week after the war began to permit the overwhelming rush which carried the Kaiser's troops almost to Paris.

The Italian halt has occurred before any serious encounter with the enemy has been fought. This fact suggests the Italian mobilization is far behind the standard of celerity fixed by the Germans last August. The Germans were able to throw into Belgium a force sufficient to maintain a continuous vanguard action until the major mass of the German troops was ready to strike. Italy has not succeeded in approaching this record in any way.

Italy's failure, in the third week of her entrance into the war, to begin the development of even a minor offensive is not encouraging to those who believed large military capacity would be shown by the Italian general staff. Lack of capacity for organization may be Italy's worst foe in the days that are ahead.

Chinese lanterns strung on a sloping wire.

"I wonder what Julius Caesar or Napoleon would have thought of this battle," said the doctor, quietly. With our glasses we could make out two miles away a green farm; bordered by a wood. At the edge of the wood ran the German trenches, appearing from our vantage, like a strip of sand. Another strip of sand ran through the middle of the farm; they were the English trenches. They were only two short strips of the great line of 450 miles. More than once when we tore our gaze from other spots and watched these trenches we saw the burst of shrapnel over them.

The roar of the British guns which answered the German trench fire, was at times, almost deafening. In the midst of all this tumult was system and order for war is the most systematic arranged affair that human beings conduct.

From all this great front wires stretched, couriers rode, news hurried, back to one point, to one room, to one table, where a short sturdy, white-mustached man sat and played his part of the giant game of checkers on this board of Flanders, with all the weight on his shoulders and with the fortunes and lives and welfare of millions in his hands, and a page waiting in the history of the world on which would be written how well he had done today's work.

GRINDING not necessary with the Real Tobacco Chew—and it gives you all the good tobacco satisfaction you are entitled to.

There's the reason in a nutshell why users of the Real Tobacco go out of their way to tell a friend about it.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW IS NOW CUT TWO WAYS! W-B CUT IS LONG SHRED. RIGHT-CUT IS SHORT SHRED.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end. The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

Mr. Voter, this is a portion of the crimes committed in Crow Wing county and tried in the district court during the last ten years of which liquor was the contributing cause. When men talk about the necessity of the saloon go a step further and think of the result of the saloon. The above is but a portion of the result; it is perhaps the smallest part of the damage done by the saloon. Think of its acknowledged evil effect upon the progeny of the race. Think of the fact that much over half of our poverty comes as a result of the saloon. Think that there have been hundreds of men in every walk of life, farmers, machinists, professional men, business men, men of good possibilities as well as men of average possibilities who have been reduced from prosperous providers of families to wretches who have filled drunkard's graves or who have broken their lives and whose children have been denied a good healthy childhood as well as being handicapped in the race of life. Think of what mothers and wives have suffered then consider soberly what would be the right way for you to vote on county option. Seriously now, is there one good reason why every voter in Crow Wing county should not turn out and vote for county option on June 28? If there is one good reason this organization would be glad to hear it. The results of the saloon costs the county more than it receives. "Personal Liberty," so much dwelt upon by the liquor forces, means the right for a man to get drunk and commit the crimes referred to above. A man's "personal liberty" to carry concealed weapons with which he would protect himself is prohibited. A man's "personal liberty" to use opium, is prohibited, and so are hundreds of other "personal liberties" prohibited by law. Why should he be given a greater privilege with liquor when it makes worse than a host of so many users? Come Voters, let us have a dry county.—CROW WING COUNTY OPTION LEAGUE.

They were only two short strips of the great line of 450 miles. More than once when we tore our gaze from other spots and watched these trenches we saw the burst of shrapnel over them.

The roar of the British guns which answered the German trench fire, was at times, almost deafening. In the midst of all this tumult was system and order for war is the most systematic arranged affair that human beings conduct.

From all this great front wires stretched, couriers rode, news hurried, back to one point, to one room, to one table, where a short sturdy, white-mustached man sat and played his part of the giant game of checkers on this board of Flanders, with all the weight on his shoulders and with the fortunes and lives and welfare of millions in his hands, and a page waiting in the history of the world on which would be written how well he had done today's work.

DOC: MY TEETH ARE SO WORN DOWN THAT I NEED A NEW SET TO CHEW TOBACCO WITH.

I WILL FURNISH THE NEW SET GLADLY, BUT YOU OUGHT TO USE THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW—NO GRINDING NECESSARY.

DOC: THAT MAN HAS MY SYMPATHY—DON'T CHARGE HIM FOR ADVICE.

GRINDING not necessary with the Real Tobacco Chew—and it gives you all the good tobacco satisfaction you are entitled to.

There's the reason in a nutshell why users of the Real Tobacco go out of their way to tell a friend about it.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW IS NOW CUT TWO WAYS!! W-B CUT IS LONG SHRED, RIGHT-CUT IS SHORT SHRED!!

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste!!

Mr. Voter, this is a portion of the crimes committed in Crow Wing county and tried in the district court during the last ten years of which liquor was the contributing cause. When men talk about the necessity of the saloon go a step further and think of the result of the saloon. The above is but a portion of the result; it is perhaps the smallest part of the damage done by the saloon. Think of its acknowledged evil effect upon the progeny of the race. Think of the fact that much over half of our poverty comes as a result of the saloon. Think that there have been hundreds of men in every walk of life, farmers, machinists, professional men, business men, men of good possibilities as well as men of average possibilities who have been reduced from prosperous providers of families to wretches who have filled drunkard's graves or who have broken their lives and whose children have been denied a good healthy childhood as well as being handicapped in the race of life. Think of what mothers and wives have suffered then consider soberly what would be the right way for you to vote on county option. Seriously now, is there one good reason why every voter in Crow Wing county should not turn out and vote for county option on June 28? If there is one good reason this organization would be glad to hear it. The results of the saloon costs the county more than it receives. "Personal Liberty", so much dwelt upon by the liquor forces, means the right for a man to get drunk and commit the crimes referred to above. A man's "personal liberty" to carry concealed weapons with which he would protect himself is prohibited. A man's "personal liberty" to use opium is prohibited, and so are hundreds of other "personal liberties" prohibited by law. Why should he be given a greater privilege with liquor when it makes worse than a host of so many users? Come Voters, let us have a dry county—CROW WING COUNTY OPTION LEAGUE.

He was 54 years of age and had resided 33 years in Brainerd, much of the time being in business in Brainerd where he conducted a meat market. ONLY LAST HALF DUE

Under Special Revenue War Tax,
Those Taxed Pay for the Half Year
Ending Dec. 31, 1915

The government war tax becomes imperative December 31, 1915. Accordingly, those requiring to pay these taxes will have to pay for but half a year, July 1 to December 31, 1915.

The government passed a special revenue tax imposed by the act of October 22, 1914, under which brokers, pawnbrokers, commercial brokers, customhouse brokers, proprietors of theatres museums, or concert halls, proprietors of circuses, proprietors or agents of public exhibitions not otherwise enumerated, proprietors of bowling alleys or billiard rooms, commission merchants, dealers in leaf tobacco, dealers in tobacco not otherwise provided for whose annual receipts from sales exceed $200, manufacturers of tobacco, manufacturers of cigars and manufacturers of cigarettes paid special taxes, becoming due July 1, 1915.

For example, dealers in tobacco are required to pay a tax of $4.80 per year, one-half of this amount being $2.40, the amount to be paid for the six months ending December 31, 1915.

This will apply to all who are required to pay the special tax commonly known as the war tax.

Forms for making the returns will be mailed to those having previously paid a tax under this act. Should tax payers receive no blanks on or before July 1 those omitted may get the blanks for making returns by applying to the collector, E. J. Lynch, or to the deputy collector D. L. Rankin, at Brainerd.

BRAINERD WANTS THE SOO RAILWAY

City Development Committee of

ACTION TAKEN AT MEETING

Will Visit President Pennington of
the Soo—No Fourth of July Celebration Here

Brainerd wants the Soo in Brainerd is the gist of a report of the city development committee made to the Chamber of Commerce at their meeting Wednesday evening. Here is the report:

Brainerd, Minn.,

June 8, 1915.

Chamber of Commerce,

City.

Gentlemen:
Your City Development committee considers it highly advisable that the Chamber of Commerce go on record as being in favor of the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie railroad company extending its line of railroad into the city of Brainerd.

We therefore recommend that the organization adopt the following resolution:

Be it resolved by the Chamber of Commerce of Brainerd, Minnesota that it requests and cordially invites the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie Railroad Company to extend its line of railway into the city of Brainerd.

Be it further resolved that the said Chamber of Commerce of Brainerd will do all that it consistently can to aid and assist said Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie Ry. Co. in the acquisition of its yards, right of way and depot grounds in the city of Brainerd, and be it further resolved that it bespeaks for the said railroad company in case it extends its lines into the city of Brainerd and maintains a freight and passenger depot in this city, the co-operation of the citizens of Brainerd.

Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be sent to Mr. Edmund Pennington, the president of the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie Railroad Company, and that a committee of three be appointed from the Chamber of Commerce to visit Mr. Pennington and in person present these resolutions and the sentiments of the Chamber and citizens generally as far as these sentiments can be obtained.

Your committee further recommends that the following members of the Chamber be appointed on this committee: Mayor R. A. Beise, P. W. Donovan, W. F. Wieland.

Respectfully submitted,
City Development Committee,
(Signed) C. H. Paine,
Chairman.

About thirty members were present at the Chamber of Commerce meeting. The committee as recommended in the report of the city development committee, have accepted appointment and at an early date will meet for the purpose of setting a date to visit President Pennington of the Soo line. The committee will invite him to visit the city of Brainerd. Mr. Pennington and other officials will be put in touch with the situation in Brainerd and every effort made to have the railway line extended from Riverton, eight miles away, to Brainerd.

The special Fourth of July committee, C. E. Parker, chairman, H. W. Linnemann, H. P. Dunn, N. H. Ingersoll and Henry I. Cohen, presented its report. The report, which was accepted, reads:

Brainerd, Minn., June 9, 1915.

Your special committee for the purpose of investigating and securing the sentiment of the citizens of Brainerd as to whether they are in favor of a Fourth of July celebration this year or not, beg leave to report as follows:

That division of our committee that interviewed the merchants, professional men and citizens generally, find that the sentiment expressed was unfavorable to hold a celebration this year. The reasons were because of the unfavorable financial conditions existing at the present time and that the money expended for such celebration could be used to better advantage than in the manner as heretofore.

The division of the committee who interviewed the different local labor and fraternal organizations have found by making a canvass of the city that there is no general disposition for a celebration and that no financial support could be secured from these quarters. Your committee therefore in conclusion would recommend that in their estimation a Fourth of July celebration for the various reasons set forth would be unadvisable this year, and that a copy of this report be published in the daily and weekly papers in the city.

C. E. PARKER, Chairman
Special Fourth of July Committee.

A communication was read from D. C. Henderson, of Nisswa, that the Independence Day celebration at Cullen lake would be held on Saturday, July 3, being a union picnic by the Nisswa Community club, Mission Lake Farmers club and the Pelican Better Farming Club.

The membership committee reported on the results of the six weeks' campaign for members. Forty new members were secured. The list follows: Edw. Anderson 18, Erick Kronberg 11, J. A. Johnson 3, Clifford Russell 3, Ed. Gruenhagen 1, John Holvick 1, V. N. Roderick 1, S. English 1, E. A. Kefgen 1. Total secured 40.

This suit donated by Johnson Bros. & Halberg to the one securing the most members goes to Edw. Anderson. The membership committee in conclusion recommended that the Chamber of Commerce should show their appreciation of the work accomplished and that each member who had secured one or more members be invited as guests of the advisory board at a supper to be held sometime this month. This was concurred in by the Chamber. Plans are now under way for a get-together supper.

The committee on public affairs of which Carl Zapffe is chairman requested that the organization take steps to have the city council annex Lam park. The report follows:

June 9, 1915.

To the Honorable Council
City of Brainerd, Minn.
Gentlemen:

Upon the instruction of the Advisory Board of the Chamber of Commerce, which action was endorsed by the Chamber itself at its regular meeting, the undersigned, the chairman of the Public Affairs Committee presents this communication to your Honorable body.

Upon the suggestion of the charter commission, while in session last fall, a bill was drafted by its attorney and passed by the 1915 state legislature whereby it has been made possible by ordinance to annex Lam Park to our city. This bill was approved by the preceding council and various local organizations because it was deemed advisable that Lam Park should be entirely under the jurisdiction of the city, and no statute existed at the time whereby annexation under the existing conditions was possible.

The Chamber of Commerce, therefore, begs your body to take advantage of this new statute passed for the special benefit of the city and prepare and pass the necessary ordinance applicable to the situation.

Respectfully,
CARL ZAPFFE,
Chairman Public Affairs
Committee.

The advisory board recommended that the city building committee be instructed to confer with the council with a view of having constructed an official bulletin board to avoid posting official notices on any public buildings. The point was made that several notices have been tacked at the entrance to the new city hall.

The publicity committee was authorized to purchase quantities of advertising poster stamps and to offer them to merchants and business houses at cost, providing a sufficient number of orders can be procured to get reasonable prices.

New members elected were W. E. Lively and F. G. Ostland.

P. B. Nettleton spoke on the advisability of arranging trade excursions and recommended the appointment of a trade extension committee. The motion carried and Rev. G. P. Sheridan, chairman pro tem, appointed P. B. Nettleton as chairman of such committee, and he to appoint his own committee.

Mr. Nettleton referred to the farmers picnic at Bay Lake July 16, where President Vincent of the University of Minnesota will be the speaker of the day. He proposed securing 15 or 20 autos and having a delegation of business men of Brainerd journey to Bay Lake and attend the picnic.

Attention was called to the railway mens' picnic on June 19. On motion of Dr. Walter Courtney a donation of $10 was voted with which to purchase a prize to be offered at the field days sports, part of the program on the picnic day. A letter of endorsement is to be issued to the executive committee of the picnic in which the good will of the Chamber of Commerce is expressed and merchants are asked to respond in whatever manner they see fit.

ONLY LAST HALF DUE

Under Special Revenue War Tax,
Those Taxed Pay for the Half Year
Ending Dec. 31, 1915

The government war tax becomes inoperative December 31, 1915. Accordingly, those requiring to pay these taxes will have to pay for but half a year, July 1 to December 31, 1915.

The government passed a special revenue tax imposed by the act of October 22, 1914, under which brokers, pawnbrokers, commercial brokers, customhouse brokers, proprietors of theatres, museums, or concert halls, proprietors of circuses, proprietors or agents of public exhibitions not otherwise enumerated, proprietors of bowling alleys or billiard rooms, commission merchants, dealers in leaf tobacco, dealers in tobacco not otherwise provided for whose annual receipts from sales exceed $200, manufacturers of tobacco, manufacturers of cigars and manufacturers of cigarettes paid special taxes, becoming due July 1, 1915.

For example, dealers in tobacco are required to pay a tax of $1.80 per year, one-half of this amount being $2.40, the amount to be paid for the six months ending December 31, 1915.

This will apply to all who are required to pay the special tax commonly known as the war tax.

Forms for making the returns will be mailed to those having previously paid a tax under this act. Should tax payers receive no blanks on or before July 1 those omitted may get the blanks for making returns by applying to the collector, E. J. Lynch, or to the deputy collector D. L. ACTION TAKEN AT MEETING

the Soo—No Fourth of July
Celebration Here

Brainerd wants the Soo in Brainerd is the gist of a report of the city development committee made to the Chamber of Commerce at their meeting Wednesday evening. Here is the report:

Brainerd, Minn.,
June 8, 1915.
Chamber of Commerce,
City.

Gentlemen:
Your City Development committee considers it highly advisable that the Chamber of Commerce go on record as being in favor of the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie railroad company extending its line of railroad into the city of Brainerd.

We therefore recommend that the organization adopt the following resolution:

Be it resolved by the Chamber of Commerce of Brainerd, Minnesota that it requests and cordially invites the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie Railroad Company to extend its line of railway into the city of Brainerd.

Be it further resolved that the said Chamber of Commerce of Brainerd will do all that it consistently can to aid and assist said Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie Ry. Co. in the acquisition of its yards, right of way and depot grounds in the city of Brainerd, and be it further resolved that it bespeaks for the said railroad company in case it extends its lines into the city of Brainerd and maintains a freight and passenger depot in this city, the co-operation of the citizens of Brainerd.

Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be sent to Mr. Edmund Pennington, the president of the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie Railroad Company, and that a committee of three be appointed from the Chamber of Commerce to visit Mr. Pennington and in person present these resolutions and the sentiments of the Chamber and citizens generally as far as these sentiments can be obtained.

Your committee further recommends that the following members of the Chamber be appointed on this committee: Mayor R. A. Baise, P. W. Donovan, W. F. Wieland.

Respectfully submitted,
City Development Committee,
(Signed) C. H. Paine,
Chairman.

About thirty members were present at the Chamber of Commerce meeting. The committee as recommended in the report of the city development committee, have accepted appointment and at an early date will meet for the purpose of setting a date to visit President Pennington of the Soo line. The committee will invite him to visit the city of Brainerd. Mr. Pennington and other officials will be put in touch with the situation in Brainerd and every effort made to have the railway line extended from Riverport, eight miles away, to Brainerd.

The special Fourth of July committee, C. E. Parker, chairman, H. W. Linnemann, H. P. Dunn, N. H. Ingersoll and Henry I. Cohen, presented its report. The report, which was accepted, reads:

Brainerd, Minn., June 9, 1915.
Your special committee for the purpose of investigating and securing the sentiment of the citizens of Brainerd as to whether they are in favor of a Fourth of July celebration this year or not, beg leave to report as follows:

That division of our committee that interviewed the merchants, professional men and citizens generally, find that the sentiment expressed was unfavorable to hold a celebration this year. The reasons were because of the unfavorable financial conditions existing at the present time and that the money expended for such celebration could be used to better advantage than in the manner as heretofore.

The division of the committee who interviewed the different local labor and fraternal organizations have found by making a canvass of the city that there is no general disposition for a celebration and that no financial support could be secured from these quarters. Your committee therefore in conclusion would recommend that in their estimation a Fourth of July celebration for the various reasons set forth would be unadvisable this year, and that a copy of this report be published in the daily and weekly papers in the city.

C. E. PARKER, Chairman
Special Fourth of July Committee.

A communication was read from D. C. Henderson, of Nisswa, that the Independence Day celebration at Cullen lake would be held on Saturday, July 3, being a union picnic by the Nisswa Community club, Mission Lake Farmers club and the Pelican Better Farming Club.

The membership committee reported on the results of the six weeks' campaign for members. Forty new members were secured. The list follows: Edw. Anderson 18, Erick Kronberg 11, J. A. Johnson 3, Clifford Russell 3, Ed. Gruenhagen 1, John Holvick 1, V. N. Roderick 1, S. English 1, E. A. Kefgen 1. Total secured 40.

This suit donated by Johnson Bros. & Halberg to the one securing the most members goes to Edw. Anderson. The membership committee in conclusion recommended that the Chamber of Commerce should show their appreciation of the work accomplished and that each member who had secured one or more members be invited as guests of the advisory board at a supper to be held sometime this month. This was concurred in by the Chamber. Plans are now under way for a get-together supper.

The committee on public affairs of which Carl Zapffe is chairman requested that the organization take steps to have the city council annex Lam park. The report follows:

June 9, 1915.

To the Honorable Council
City of Brainerd, Minn.
Gentlemen:

Upon the instruction of the Advisory Board of the Chamber of Commerce, which action was endorsed by the Chamber itself at its regular meeting, the undersigned, the chairman of the Public Affairs Committee presents this communication to your Honorable body.

Upon the suggestion of the charter commission, while in session last fall, a bill was drafted by its attorney and passed by the 1915 state legislature whereby it has been made possible by ordinance to annex Lam Park to our city. This bill was approved by the preceding council and various local organizations because it was deemed advisable that Lam Park should be entirely under the jurisdiction of the city, and no statute existed at this time whereby annexation under the existing conditions was possible.

The Chamber of Commerce, therefore, begs your body to take advantage of this new statute passed for the special benefit of the city and prepare and pass the necessary ordinance applicable to the situation.

Respectfully,
CARL ZAPFFE,
Chairman Public Affairs
Committee.

The advisory board recommended that the city building committee be instructed to confer with the council with a view of having constructed an official bulletin board to avoid posting official notices on any public buildings. The point was made that several notices have been tacked at the entrance to the new city hall.

The publicity committee was authorized to purchase quantities of advertising poster stamps and to offer them to merchants and business houses at cost, providing a sufficient number of orders can be procured to get reasonable prices.

New members elected were W. E. Lively and F. G. Oakland.

P. B. Nettleton spoke on the advisability of arranging trade excursions and recommended the appointment of a trade extension committee. The motion carried and Rev. G. P. Sheridan, chairman pro tem, appointed P. B. Nettleton as chairman of such committee, and he to appoint his own commissioners.

Mr. Nettleton referred to the farmers picnic at Bay Lake July 16, where President Vincent of the University of Minnesota will be the speaker of the day. He proposed securing 15 or 20 autos and having a delegation of business men of Brainerd journey to Bay Lake and attend the picnic.

Attention was called to the railway mens' picnic on June 19. On motion of Dr. Walter Courtney a donation of $10 was voted with which to purchase a prize to be offered at the field days sports, part of the program on the picnic day. A letter of endorsement is to be issued to the executive committee of the picnic in which the good will of the Chamber of Commerce is expressed and merchants are asked to respond in whatever manner they see fit.

"I'll Give a Ten-Pound Note to Anyone Who Gets Me Out to the Barton Before She Sails."

Quest's arm tightened for a moment in Lenora's. It was curious how he seemed to have lost at that moment all sense of proportion. Lenora was safe—the relief of that one thought overshadowed everything else in the world.

"The fellow can't get far," he muttered.

"Who knows?" the professor replied, dolefully.

They had been standing together in a little recess of the hall. Suddenly Lenora, whose face was turned toward the entrance doors, gave a little cry. She took a quick step forward.

"Laura!" she exclaimed, wonderingly. "Why, it's Laura!"

They all turned around. A young woman had just entered the hotel, followed by a porter carrying some luggage. Her arm was in a sling and there was a bandage around her forehead. She walked, too, with the help of a stick. She recognized them at once and waved it gayly.

"Hullo, you people!" she cried. "Soon run you to earth, eh?"

They were for a moment dumfounded. Lenora was the first to find words. "But when did you start, Laura?" she asked. "I thought you were too ill to move for weeks."

The girl smiled contemptuously. "I left three days after you, on the Kaiser Frederick," she replied. "There was some trouble at Plymouth, and we came into Southampton early this morning, and here I am. Say, before we go any further, tell me about Craig."

"We've had him," Quest confessed, "and lost him again. He escaped last night."

"Where from?" Laura asked. "Hamblyn house."

"Say, is that anywhere near the south coast?" the girl demanded excitedly.

"It's not far away," Quest replied, quickly. "Why?"

"I'll tell you why," Laura explained. "I was as sure of it as anyone could be. Craig passed me in Southampton water this morning, being rowed out to a steamer. Not only that, but he recognized me. I saw him draw back and hide his face, but somehow I couldn't believe that it was really he. I was just coming down the gangway and I nearly fell into the sea. I was so surprised."

Quest was already turning over the pages of the timetable.

"What was the steamer?" he demanded.

"I found out," Laura told him. "I tell you, I was so sure of it's being Craig that I made no end of inquiries. It was the Barton, bound for India, first stop Port Said."

"When does she sail?" Quest asked.

"Tonight—somewhere about seven," Laura replied.

Quest glanced at the clock and threw down the timetable. He turned toward the door. They all followed him.

"I'm for Southampton," he announced. "I'm going to try to get on board that steamer before she sails. Lenora, you'd better go upstairs and lie down. They'll give you a room here. Don't you stir out till I come back. Professor, what about you?"

"I shall accompany you," the professor declared.

"And nothing," Lenora declared, firmly, as she caught at Quest's arm, "would keep me away."

"I'll telephone to Scotland Yard, in case they care to send a man down," Quest decided.

They caught a train to Southampton, where they were joined by a man from Scotland Yard. The little party drove as quickly as possible to the docks.

"Where does the Barton start from?" Quest asked the piermaster.

The man pointed out a little way down the water.

"She's not in dock, sir," he said. "She's lying out yonder. You'll barely catch her, I'm afraid," he added, glancing at the clock.

They hurried to the edge of the quay.

"Look here," Quest cried, raising his voice. "I'll give a ten-pound note to anyone who gets me out to the Barton before she sails."

The little party were almost thrown into a tug, and in a few minutes they were skimming across the smooth water. Just as they reached the steamer, however, she began to move.

"Run up alongside," Quest ordered. The captain came down from the bridge, where he had been conferring with the pilot.

"Keep away from the side there," he shouted. "Who are you?"

"We are in search of a desperate criminal whom we believe to be on board your steamer," Quest explained. "Please take us on board."

The captain shook his head. "Are you from Scotland Yard?" he asked. "Have you got your warrant?"

"We are from America," Quest answered, "but we've got a Scotland Yard man with us and a warrant, right enough."

The captain shook his head. "I am over an hour late," he said, "and it's costing me fifty pounds a minute. If I take you on board, you'll have to come right along with me, unless you find the fellow before we've left your tub behind."

Quest turned around.

"Will you risk it?" he asked.

"Yes!" they all replied.

"We're coming, captain," Quest decided.

A rope ladder was let down. The steamer began to slow down.

The captain spoke once more to the pilot and came down from the bridge.

"I'm forced to go full speed ahead to cross the bar," he told Quest. "I'm sorry, but the tide's just on the turn."

They looked at one another a little blankly.

The professor, however, beamed upon them all.

"I have always understood," he said, "that Port Said is a most interesting place."

PRESIDENT OBEYS PUBLIC'S WISHES

Tries to Carry Out Will of Majority as Far as Possible.

KEEPS EAR TO THE GROUND

Wilson Also Tries to Guide the Thoughts of the People in the Right Direction—Republican Points Out That Democratic Popularity Has Been Greatly Increased Recently.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, June 10.—[Special.]—To say that a statesman "keeps his ear to the ground" is not a disparagement. If we are true to the democratic principles of government which we profess we should applaud the man in power who listens carefully to the voice of the people and carries out their will.

Woodrow Wilson is said to be almost as expert as Theodore Roosevelt in the matter of "keeping his ear to the ground," which is another way of saying that he keeps in touch with ideas and wishes of the people.

"President Wilson," remarked one of his admirers, "desires to guide the thoughts of the people in the right direction. He wants them to think right, but he also recognizes that their wishes should be obeyed, and so far as possible he will try to carry out their desires in the conduct of the affairs of the United States."

His Party Obligations.

"After the next election, especially if Root should be the Republican nominee, we will have a president who will not be a partisan, who will shape every move for the benefit of the whole country without regard to the effect upon his party."

That statement was made by one of the Democratic senators who came to Washington some time ago after a visit among his constituents. He was not predicting Root's election, but was sizing up both Wilson and Root. After the next campaign he thought Wilson would cease partisan politics or doing anything for party's sake. "Wilson," he said, "is not a partisan, but he believes that government can be best conducted through party organization. He is a party man to that extent."

Rainbows and Chestnuts.

During the preliminaries to the campaign of 1912 William J. Bryan was quite active in an effort to control the Democratic convention. He saw with considerable concern the development of the Underwood boom in several southern states and attempted to head it off. He tried to get Hoke Smith to become a candidate and corral the delegates in a section where Underwood was sweeping things before him. The Georgia man wouldn't be convinced that the swimming was fine.

"I am not chasing rainbows," he replied to Bryan's message, "nor pulling chestnuts out of the fire for anybody else. My opposition to the extravagant pension system makes me unavailable. My field of work is in and for my own section."

It is not known whether Bryan took the reference to "chestnuts" to mean that Hoke suspected him of wanting the senator to get a few delegates together that might go over to the Nebraska man at the proper time.

War an Asset.

"If the European war continues Wilson will be re-elected, particularly if he is able to handle the diplomatic situations in a satisfactory manner." It was an Indiana Republican who made the prediction. There are a great many Republicans who have been insisting that the war has been a great Democratic asset.

Our Stake in China.

"We are not going to surrender any rights in China or any other part of the world," remarked Hoke Smith. "Our interests in China are great." The possibilities of consumption in that country are enormous. And we have wheat, corn, cotton and manufactured products to sell them. Whatever happens, we will protect that market. We will have a sufficient naval force in the Pacific ocean to insure fair trade and commerce in the orient."

"Admiral" McAdoo.

They have already begun to call him "Admiral" McAdoo in anticipation of the fleet he will command when the government purchases and operates various lines of steamers. Secretary McAdoo believes that the necessity for the purchase of ships by the United States is so great and the duty of congress so plain that there will not be much hesitation over the bill when it is presented to congress in the next session.

Liked the Location.

Those South and Central American financial and commercial men who came to the conference in Washington had an opportunity to see the fine building in which their countries have a joint interest with all other republics on the western hemisphere. The Pan-American building is not only one of the handsomest structures in the country, but it is splendidly located, overlooking Potomac park and the historic river. John Barrett took great pride in showing the visitors this building, constructed under his direction.

MAYO PLAN TO BE TRIED

Minnesota "U" Regents Accept Foundation Scheme.

Minneapolis, June 10.—By a unanimous vote of the ten members of the board of regents present at the University of Minnesota that body decided to enter the six-year trial period in which graduate medical work will be pursued at Rochester under the offer of the Mayo Foundation, which makes available, in the event of a permanent arrangement, the income of a $2,000,000 endowment.

Under the formal arrangement to be entered into the Mayo Foundation agreed to pay all expenses, provide all subjects, facilities and material necessary for the pursuance of graduate medical work at Rochester until Sept. 1, 1921. In the meantime an endowment of $1,500,000 in the hands of the trustees of the Mayo Foundation will be invested and allowed to accumulate so that at the end of the six-year period it would amount to a sum more than $2,000,000.

Minneapolis, June 10.—The resignation of Dr. Charles Lyman Greene of St. Paul from the position of head of the department of medicine in the medical college at the University of Minnesota was presented soon after the board of regents accepted the Mayo six-year trial period offer for medical research at Rochester.

Dr. Greene was prominent in the campaign against the acceptance of the endowment. He was severely cross-examined by the regents at their hearing June 5, when he appeared with objections gathered from medical authorities.

"I'll Give a Ten-Pound Note to Anyone Who Gets Me Out to the Barton Before She Sails."

Quest's arm tightened for a moment in Lenora's. It was curious how he seemed to have lost at that moment all sense of proportion. Lenora was safe, the relief of that one thought overshadowed everything else in the world.

"The fellow can't get far," he muttered.

"Who knows?" the professor replied, dolefully.

They had been standing together in a little recess of the hall. Suddenly Lenora, whose face was turned toward the entrance doors, gave a little cry. She took a quick step forward.

"Laura!" she exclaimed, wonderingly. "Why, it's Laura!"

They all turned around. A young woman had just entered the hotel, followed by a porter carrying some luggage. Her arm was in a sling and there was a bandage around her forehead. She walked, too, with the help of a stick. She recognized them at once and waved it gayly.

"Hullo, you people!" she cried.

"Soon run you to earth, eh?"

They were for a moment dumfounded. Lenora was the first to find words. "But when did you start, Laura?" she asked.

"I thought you were too ill to move for weeks."

"I left three days after you, on the Kaiser Frederic," she replied. "There was some trouble at Plymouth, and we came into Southampton early this morning, and here I am. Say, before we go any further, tell me about Craig."

"We've had him," Quest confessed.

"and lost him again. He escaped last night."

"Where from?" Laura asked.

"Hamblin house."

"Say, is that anywhere near the north coast?" the girl demanded excitedly.

"It's not far away," Quest replied, quickly. "Why?"

"I'll tell you why," Laura explained.

"I was as sure of it as anyone could be. Craig passed me in Southampton water this morning, being rowed out to a steamer. Not only that, but he recognized me. I saw him draw back and hide his face, but somehow I couldn't believe that it was really he. I was just coming down the gangway and I nearly fell into the sea. I was so surprised."

Quest was already turning over the pages of the timetable.

"What was the steamer?" he demanded.

"I found out," Laura told him. "I tell you, I was as sure of it as Craig that I made no end of inquiries. It was the Barton, bound for India, first stop Port Said."

"When does she sail?" Quest asked.

"Tonight—somewhere about seven," Laura replied.

Quest glanced at the clock and threw down the timetable. He turned toward the door. They all followed him.

"I'm for Southampton," he announced. "I'm going to try to get on board that steamer before she sails. Lenora, you'd better go upstairs and lie down. They'll give you a room here. Don't you stir out till I come back. Professor, what about you?"

"I shall accompany you," the professor declared.

"And nothing," Lenora declared, firmly, as she caught at Quest's arm, "would keep me away."

"I'll telephone to Scotland Yard, in case they care to send a man down."

Quest decided.

They caught a train to Southampton, where they were joined by a man from Scotland Yard. The little party board your steamer," Quest explained.

"Please take us on board."

The captain shook his head.

"Are you from Scotland Yard?" he asked. "Have you got your warrant?"

"We are from America," Quest answered, "but we've got a Scotland Yard man with us and a warrant, right enough."

The captain shook his head.

"I am over an hour late," he said, "and it's costing me fifty pounds a minute. If I take you on board, you'll have to come right along with me, unless you find the fellow before we've left your tub behind."

Quest turned around.

"Will you risk it?" he asked.

"Yes!" they all replied.

"We're coming, captain," Quest decided.

A rope ladder was let down. The steamer began to slow down.

The captain spoke once more to the pilot and came down from the bridge.

"I'm forced to go full speed ahead to cross the bar," he told Quest. "I'm sorry, but the tide's just on the turn."

They looked at one another a little blankly.

The professor, however, beamed upon them all.

"I have always understood," he said, "that Port Said is a most interesting place."

PRESIDENT OBEYS PUBLIC'S WISHES

Tries to Carry Out Will of Majority as Far as Possible.

KEEPS EAR TO THE GROUND

Wilson Also Tries to Guide the Thoughts of the People in the Right Direction—Republican Points Out That Democratic Popularity Has Been Greatly Increased Recently.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, June 10.—[Special.]—To say that a statesman "keeps his ear to the ground" is not a disparagement. If we are true to the democratic principles of government which we profess we should applaud the man in power who listens carefully to the voice of the people and carries out their will.

Woodrow Wilson is said to be almost as expert as Theodore Roosevelt in the matter of "keeping his ear to the ground," which is another way of saying that he keeps in touch with ideas and wishes of the people.

"President Wilson," remarked one of his admirers, "desires to guide the thoughts of the people in the right direction. He wants them to think right, but he also recognizes that their wishes should be obeyed, and so far as possible he will try to carry out their desires in the conduct of the affairs of the United States."

His Party Obligations.

"After the next election, especially if Root should be the Republican nominee, we will have a president who will not be a partisan, who will shape every move for the benefit of the whole country without regard to the effect upon his party."

That statement was made by one of the Democratic senators who came to Washington some time ago after a visit among his constituents. He was not predicting Root's election, but was sizing up both Wilson and Root. After the next campaign he thought Wilson would cease partisan politics or doing anything for party's sake. "Wilson," he said, "is not a partisan, but he believes that government can be best conducted through party organization. He is a party man to that extent."

Rainbows and Chestnuts.

During the preliminaries to the campaign of 1912 William J. Bryan was quite active in an effort to control the Democratic convention. He saw with considerable concern the development of the Underwood boom in several southern states and attempted to head it off. He tried to get Hoke Smith to become a candidate and corral the delegates in a section where Underwood was sweeping things before him. The Georgia man wouldn't be convinced that the swimming was fine.

"I am not chasing rainbows," he replied to Bryan's message, "nor pulling chestnuts out of the fire for anybody else. My opposition to the extravagant pension system makes me unavailable. My field of work is in and for my own section."

It is not known whether Bryan took the reference to "chestnuts" to mean that Hoke suspected him of wanting the senator to get a few delegates together that might go over to the Nebraska man at the proper time.

War an Asset.

"If the European war continues Wilson will be re-elected, particularly if he is able to handle the diplomatic situations in a satisfactory manner." It was an Indiana Republican who made the prediction. There are a great many Republicans who have been insisting that the war has been a great Democratic asset.

Our Stake in China.

"We are not going to surrender any rights in China or any other part of the world," remarked Hoke Smith. "Our interests in China are great," continued the Georgia senator. "The possibilities of consumption in that country are enormous. And we have wheat, corn, cotton and manufactured products to sell them. Whatever happens, we will protect that market. We will have a sufficient naval force in the Pacific ocean to insure fair trade and commerce in the Orient."

"Admiral" McAdoo.

They have already begun to call him "Admiral" McAdoo in anticipation of the fleet he will command when the government purchases and operates various lines of steamers. Secretary McAdoo believes that the necessity for the purchase of ships by the United States is so great and the duty of congress so plain that there will not be much hesitation over the bill when it is presented to congress in the next session.

Liked the Location.

Those South and Central American financial and commercial men who came to the conference in Washington had an opportunity to see the fine building in which their countries have a joint interest with all other republics on the western hemisphere. The Pan-American building is not only one of the handsomest structures in the country, but it is splendidly located, overlooking Potomac park and the historic river. John Barrett took great pride in showing the visitors this building, constructed under his direction.

MAYO PLAN TO BE TRIED

Minnesota "U" Regents Accept Foundation Scheme.

Minneapolis, June 10.—By a unanimous vote of the ten members of the board of regents present at the University of Minnesota that body decided to enter the six-year trial period in which graduate medical work will be pursued at Rochester under the offer of the Mayo Foundation, which makes available, in the event of a permanent arrangement, the income of a $2,000,000 endowment.

Under the formal arrangement to be entered into the Mayo Foundation agreed to pay all expenses, provide all subjects, facilities and material necessary for the pursuance of graduate medical work at Rochester until Sept. 1, 1921. In the meantime an endowment of $1,500,000 in the hands of the trustees of the Mayo Foundation will be invested and allowed to accumulate so that at the end of the six-year period it would amount to a sum more than $2,000,000.

OPPOSED THE MAYO PLAN

Dr. C. L. Greene Resigns From University Medical Staff.

Minneapolis, June 10.—The resignation of Dr. Charles Lyman Greene of St. Paul from the position of head of the department of medicine in the medical college at the University of Minnesota was presented soon after the board of regents accepted the Mayo six-year trial period offer for medical research at Rochester.

Dr. Greene was prominent in the campaign against the acceptance of the endowment. He was severely cross-examined by the regents at their hearing June 5, when he appeared with objections gathered from medical authorities.
